

FIGURE 15.5. Variable importance plots for a classification random forest grown on the `spam` data. The left plot bases the importance on the Gini splitting index, as in gradient boosting. The rankings compare well with the rankings produced by gradient boosting (Figure 10.6 on page 316). The right plot uses OOB randomization to compute variable importances, and tends to spread the importances more uniformly.